

Aaron M. Crockett

E-Discovery Counsel | Portland Office

Aaron Crockett's practice focuses on the management, analysis, and production of digital evidence in civil litigation and other contexts. Before joining HLGR, Aaron was a contract attorney at Compliance Discovery Solutions in Washington, D.C., where he conducted document review in major litigation, mergers, and agency civil investigative demands for national firms and clients. He has since expanded his knowledge and skills to encompass the entire spectrum of the electronic discovery process and has been certified by ACEDS, a respected electronic discovery certifying body.

Aaron's experience with cutting-edge electronic document review technologies controls discovery costs while bringing maximum value to clients in civil litigation and other document-intensive matters. Aaron is well-versed in Oregon regulatory/administrative law and proceedings as well as HIPAA/HITECH Privacy and Security Rules requirements, Sedona Conference guidelines, and the latest developments in the civil discovery rules in both Oregon and Federal courts.

Aaron also is HLGR's point-person for cannabis regulatory and business issues in Oregon. He keeps the firm and our clients on top of Oregon's ever-evolving recreational cannabis regulations.

Education

Aaron received his J.D. from University of Oregon School of Law where he was a negotiation teaching assistant for a US News top-ten ranked dispute resolution program. Keen on maximizing practical skills, Aaron also worked for the Lane County District Attorney's Office as a court certified law student to hone courtroom skills and assisted local businesses with transactional matters in the Small Business Clinic.

Admissions & Memberships

Aaron is admitted to practice in Oregon and the District of Columbia.
