

Our Regulated Industries Practice

Healthcare, insurance, pharmaceutical, energy, telecommunication, and banking are among the most regulated industries in the United States. These and other highly-regulated industries face a framework of rules and regulations at the federal, state, and sometimes even local level.

Our regulated industries practice is focused on helping highly regulated companies comply with the regulations governing their business, understand the law in the face of regulatory change, increase profitability, and preserve business value and shareholder wealth. When administrative or civil litigation arises, we execute strategies to defend our clients against false claims, protect our clients' trade secrets and other intellectual property, and achieve cost-effective resolutions that preserve our clients' ability to compete in their markets.

Helping Clients in Seeking Regulatory Exceptions or Law Changes

In some instances, circumstances suggest that regulations should be changed, or that exceptions be granted. We have a long history of representing clients in administrative law and lobbying efforts designed to seek administrative actions or guidance concerning various matters, as well as seeking regulatory changes when desired.

We have deep experience in representing clients in highly regulated industries including:

- Healthcare
- Pharmaceutical Licensing
- Insurance
