Overview

Aaron Landau's practice is focused on appeals of civil litigation and disputes of public law.

Aaron's appellate practice includes representing both public and private clients in appeals of civil litigation, with a particular focus on matters of constitutional and public law. Aaron's practice also has included a broad variety of business disputes, including employment, health care, and products liability issues.

Aaron is a former associate and summer associate with the firm and also clerked for the Oregon Department of Justice in the Trial Division.

Prior to becoming an attorney, Aaron was a founding member and bassist for a modern jazz ensemble in Portland.

How I Serve Clients

Representing litigants on appeal involves distinctly careful and mindful work, as well as a keen sense of how a client's particular needs fit within the broader fabric of the law. In serving our clients, I draw on a broad variety of litigation experience and a particular passion for the challenges of public law. I work to provide a fresh perspective on existing disputes, a skilled voice in the courtroom, and an understanding of the unique ways that appellate review can change the circumstances our clients face.

Representative Matters

- Stanton Long v. Cheryl Betschart, et al., Lane County Circuit Court, 2017
- I was among plaintiff's counsel in litigation in two related cases that challenged several proposed ballot measures in Lane County for compliance with Oregon's election laws. Our client prevailed in full in both cases, which are now defending before the Oregon Court of Appeals.
- Everice Moro, et al. v. State of Oregon, et al., Supreme Court of the State of Oregon, 2014-15
- I helped to represent Oregon School Boards Association, five Oregon school districts, and several related public bodies in litigation concerning the effect of 2013 PERS legislation, both in evidentiary proceedings before a Special Master and on appeal before the Supreme Court.
- Mark Long v. John Kroger, Attorney General for the State of Oregon, Marion County Circuit Court, 2012
- When a client's vital public records requests to the Office of the Attorney General went unanswered, we sued for his failure to respond. After several attempts by the Attorney General to dispose of the case on motions, the case proceeded to a six-day trial. We prevailed, obtained records sought by the client, and received an award of all attorney fees.
