Overview

Bob Steringer leads Harrang Long's regionally recognized appellate practice, representing private and government clients in Oregon and Washington appellate courts, as well as the Ninth Circuit. He handles appeals on a wide range of issues, including complex business disputes, government regulation, constitutional and public policy matters, and professional licensing.

More generally, Bob represents public bodies, political organizations, regulated businesses, and private individuals in matters at the intersection of law, government, and public policy. Drawing on experience inside and outside government, Bob provides general counsel services and litigates disputes in judicial and administrative venues on matters that include:

- Constitutional law
- State agency rulemaking & regulation
- Public records & open meetings law
- Energy & Natural Resources
- Government ethics
- Election & campaign finance regulation
- Lobbying regulation
- Public contracting & prevailing wage
- Intergovernmental relations
- Intra-organizational disputes
- Public Employees Retirement System
- Professional licensing

Practice Emphasis

How I Serve Clients

Winning a verdict or an appeal is a great accomplishment, but I derive the greatest professional satisfaction from achieving a result for my client that is better than we could have achieved in court. To do that, I make sure I understand my client's broader objectives beyond the dispute in front of us, and then work creatively and persistently to win the war, not just the battle.
